

SLEEP
EAT
BREATHE
RELAX INSPIRE
THE ALPS

SLEEP EAT BREATHE RELAX INSPIRE

TURMHAUS TIROL

EXCLUSIVE HOLIDAY HOUSE

The Turmhaus showcases the designers' enthusiasm for natural materials – in this case, the combination of wood and raw concrete. The building in the Austrian Zillertal consists entirely of these two materials. This designer house has characteristic features of the regional traditional building style as it matches the hay barns in this area, yet is cutting-edge. All elements in natural stone are made from boulders taken from the excavation site. The building is divided into four residential floors with the living room and the kitchen and dining areas in the centre. An open fireplace has been integrated into the concrete core of the building. The Turmhaus Tirol is a joint project between Günecker Reichelt Architekten and Holzrausch Interior.

6280 Zell am Ziller, Austria
www.urlaubsarchitektur.de/en/turmhaus-tirol